Exciting new sponsor announced by iKBBI

A prestigious new sponsor for the iKBBI has been announced by the organisation.

UK Special Risks is an experienced and leading insurer to trades people and organisations throughout the UK. The organisation offers a multitude of insurance packages that are tailor made to each of its customers including advice and cover for the following: Public &

Employers liability, product liability, commercial property, buildings and contents, motor fleet, professional indemnity, legal expenses & directors and officers liability.

The new sponsorship deal is expected to educate members to the importance of having the right insurance package for their businesses, with an emphasis on protecting the member and their clients against unforeseen circumstances.

Spokesperson for UK Special Risks Michael Barratt says: "We are delighted to have struck up a partnership with the iKBBI as they are a highly credible outfit with an ethic to work practices that dovetails with our views on how to do business. "

Speaking on behalf of the iKBBI, Director Damian Walters says "After years of working hard to educate the kitchen and bathroom industry about better working practises when it comes to installation we feel that our organisation is finally getting the recognition we originally planned for. In just a few months we have had top brands like Tesco and John Lewis sign up to our 'Pledge' initiative, we have struck up a close working relationship with one of the leading industry PR consultancies Publicity Engineers, and now a top company like UK Special Risks endorse our organisation with their sponsorship; these really are exciting times for the iKBBI."
